E UNFORTUNATE.
EDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Gibbon s Dispensary,

R N E R St REET
R CONSULTING
Established in 1854
for the cure of Secret and Nervous Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Syphilis, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Skin Diseases, Old Sores, Ulcers, Stricture, and Ulcerated Legs, &c.

Horrible Diseases

Thousands of persons both male and female who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret and solitary vices, or from virus in the blood, whose faces and their broken-down constitutions plainly show them for the happiness of marriage, and are hurrying to premature graves, should consult Dr. Gibbon immediately. In this horrid situation, ignorance is bliss. Before you attempt to do so, be sure that you attend to those who are competent to cure you. Let patients avoid those who prescribe life-destroying mixtures, and who do not understand their diseases, so that they may be cured before it be too late. Send 25 cents in stamps to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made himself especially celebrated for cures, and who has cured more than the most inveterate cases, and who has never given poisonous drugs. It is important to those who are interested in the matter or to those who are interested in those who are interested in those who are interested in their friends to be careful of the quacks and pretenders who infest all cities, publishing their skill and the names of eminent physicians from whom they have graduated, &c. Be careful and make sure that you may fall into the hands of those who will ruin you.

Seminal Weakness.

Among the consequence of self-abuse. This fearful and depraved sexual indulgence is practiced to a frightful extent, both unfinished and unchecked, and the unerring certainty of the following train of symptoms unless combatted by appropriate remedies: Sallow countenance dark spots under the eyes, almost unfinished mail, pimples on the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rushing and rattling of chariots, uneasiness, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, loss of confidence, dizziness in society, a dislike to former new acquaintances, loss of memory, blotches and various eruptions about the face, accompanied by frequent coughs, consumption, night sweats and frequent insanity. If relief be not applied immediately, either in person or by letter, you will have a cure effected by his new and unparalleled mode of treating this disease which never fails to effect a speedy and radical cure. Dr G will give One Thousand Dollars to any person who will prove to the satisfaction of any one that he was cured of this complaint by either of the above named parties.

DR GIBBON is responsible and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a permanent cure or make no charge whatever. Patients may be CURED AT HOME by sending for Dr. Gibbon's Treatise, which will be sent to any part of the country with full directions for use. Two Ten Dollars, sent in registered letters, will be sent by Wells, Fargo & Co

Dr. F. GIBBON, 618 Kearney street, one door from Clay, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

Infection Better than Cure.

Dr. Peabody's Celebrated Patent French Bath Brick, a sure fire remedy for Gonorrhœa and Pregnancy, sent by mail or express, C. O. D. by Dr. F. GIBBON, 615 Kearney street, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252. Gentlemen and Ladies will please inform Dr. GIBBON in their letters (see advertisement in the Daily Oregonian of this date) whether Miss or Mrs. (as the case may be.) more than two-fifths of the real amount it was to pay. He had assured the public that by very advantageous rates, and that he now to comply with his contract, would be getting a bargain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he must be to such undue advantages of times to convert a few dollars to himself by LEGAL TENDERS. I do this to the public as I can readily see how much it costs to have such a establish in such costly buildings as the one referred to above.

L. JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public, and one hundred regular boarders in as good style as any House on the Coast. He has determined to make the Bennett as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem. He will soon complete some important improvements which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort, and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage.

He has secured the services of Charley P (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department, and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in cheap trap pomp and show, but in every and the furniture, but in an abundant and ample of it every part the market affords.

His bar room will be kept warmed and lighted, and well supplied with newspapers, periodicals and other suitable reading matter and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short he intends making an effort to please all who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere, and promises if they are not well treated, and properly cared for and at reasonable figures it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant.

Idaho Legislature

The Idaho Legislature convened at Boise City on the 3d inst George Ainslie was chosen President of the Council C C Dudly Secretary W W Habersham Engrossing Clerk and Ben Anderson Sergeant-at Arms A W Flournoy was elected Speaker of the House H F Sayrs Clerk, and E T Beatty Sergeant at Arms The Governor sent in his message, the chief points of which are the following,

For the first two years after the settlement of our Territory Idaho was looked upon only as a theater for speculation and as a place for a temporary residence where by enduring the necessary toil and privations rapid fortunes might be acquired The Territory was first peopled by those whose object was the acquirement of a speedy fortune and this being done to return either to the Pacific or Atlantic States but this feeling is rapidly subsiding and the abundant success attending both mining and agricultural pursuits during the past year is fast removing the prejudices that have formerly existed against Idaho as being a desirable location for a permanent residence

The most reliable information on the subject establishes the fact, that the yield of precious metals, in the aggregate, for the past year exceeds that of any preceding year. This, in connection with the fact that operations in gold and silver quartz, our principal sources of mineral wealth, are as yet only in embryo, is a source of gratification to every one concerned in the future prosperity of the Territory The ledges already opened and worked uniformly present indications of increasing richness; in not a single instance have there been indications of depreciation in the deposits of mineral wealth Only a small proportion of the gold and silver bearing quartz ledges already discovered and known to be rich some of them almost fabulously so, are as yet being worked From observation made during the last summer by intelligent and scientific gentlemen the conclusion is drawn that those ledges, which have yielded so abundantly during the present year will next year produce still greater profits, while many more will be successfully opened and their yield be found to be equally abundant

Agricultural pursuits for two years almost entirely neglected, have been prosecuted during the past year with the most gratifying results Many hundreds of acres, in the Boise Valley and other localities, have been brought under cultivation and it is cheering to learn that the yield per acre of both cereals and vegetables, will compare favorably with the yield of any other locality on the Pacific coast The day is not far distant when but little if any of the productions raised on the Pacific coast will be brought over the Blue Mountains for the support of the people of Idaho Territory Arrangements for more extended operations in both mining and agricultural pursuits are already in progress for the ensuing year The acreage of land cultivated this year will doubtless be more than doubled next, and it is safe to estimate that equal success will attend the farming interests of the country In connection with the agricultural interests of the Territory it is not uninteresting to know, that an enterprising farmer in Boise Valley, during the past summer, cultivated sorghum with the most successful results

The idea of extravagant speculation is giving way to patient toil and well regulated economy, and, judging the future by the past, this healthier sentiment on the part of the people will gradually increase until Idaho will abound in all the fixtures and elements of a well established and properly organized community As the resources of the country are more and more developed, other branches of industry, hitherto dormant will doubtless be thrown open for the active and energetic labor of the country All things considered, the future of Idaho may

The Danger

During the last six months there has been a good deal of talk about impeaching the President Yet much as the subject has been discussed comparatively few people have actually believed that impeachment would take place —unless indeed the future course of the President should be such as to make this grave proceeding imperatively necessary Few have supposed that there would any serious movement toward impeachment unless he should hereafter commit offenses of a more aggravated nature than he has hitherto committed It is true that he has threatened much, and that he has in many instances usurped powers that are not rightfully his But he is now powerless to do more Certainly if he were to undertake to carry into execution any one of his many threats against Congress, he would instantly be impeached and degraded from office He knows this, and will probably let his extravagant and violent talk pass for mere gasconade and not attempt to follow it up with decisive action Though he has done the country much mischief, his conduct has not been such as would, in the deliberate judgment of the nation, demand and justify his impeachment What he may hereafter do is another question More danger is to be apprehended from his obstinacy and wrongheadedness in future than ever before There is certain to be further difficulty between him and Congress He will strenuously oppose the act providing territorial governments in the South Congress is very likely to pass it, and to pass it over his veto It will then remain to be seen whether he will enforce it Here is the point of danger He cannot, consistently with his former declarations, enforce such a measure. He cannot, consistently with his obligations to execute the laws, refuse to do it Refusal or neglect to enforce the act (if such shall be his course) would therefore surely lead to his impeachment. Congress cannot escape its duty It is desirable that the whole difficulty should be avoided, and it is hoped that the President by a proper compliance, will render it unnecessary for Congress to have recourse to its constitutional power of impeachment. At the same time it should not be forgotten that such an emergency may arise If Johnson's course should be such as to make his impeachment necessary, the crisis must be firmly met. There can be no dodging or evading it

The Press, the organ lately startled at Umatilla, don't like Johnson's message It thinks that document too tame It has not vim nor fire enough. The Press is of opinion that its author had better leave off talking and commence acting That paper, it is evident, would thrust him on to a very dangerous enterprise Like all the balance of its party it wants another war, but it wants somebody else to stand in the post of danger. "Call you this backing your friends A plague upon such backing." The peaceful "Tribune" would prefer to let some one else take the lead. "After you, sir"

Much to our surprise we find the New York World making such a complaint as this "The postoffices of the country have come to be an enormous political machine, always unfair to the party out of power, and the distribution of them among the political adherents of an existing administration constitutes a greater part of their political patronage which is so demoralizing the people. For this reason alone it should be abolished, if not for every other reason as well"

A Copperhead paper east of the mountains says "Let the Radical victories in the States go for naught." Now don't! 'Twould be cruel to annihilate the Radical victories by a breath Better respect them 'Twill save you from the experience that the Southern wing of your party has encountered

A chemist in Keokuk, Iowa, has made an improvement in coal oil lamps by which crude petroleum may be burned, giving a most brilliant light without emitting a particle of smoke or smell As soon as a patent can be obtained the invention, it is expected, will be "all the rage"

Completion of the Overland Railroad

To give some idea of the time when it may be expected that the Pacific Railroad will be completed, we quote the following from a speech delivered a short time ago in Chicago by Gen Simpson, of the Board of Government Commissioners for the road From the dates given, it will be seen that those who intend to go East as soon as the road is completed, may as well soon begin to think of getting ready

The anticipation is confidently entertained by Mr Stanford, President of the Central Pacific Company of California, that they will, even under the present law, be able to reach Great Salt Lake City during the year 1870. General Dix, the President of the Union Pacific Railroad Company' has informed me that they will meet the Central Pacific, of California, in five years, and, thus, according to both the gentlemen named we may expect the completion of the road in 1871, or six years before the 1st of July, 1877, the limit fixed by the law It is submitted, however, that as the work in the Rocky Mountains and Utah will be very heavy, there should be some legislation which will enable the Union Pacific Railway Company to work in advance of their completed line, at least 800 miles, so that the Company could now be employing the Mormons in Utah, who, with the "Gentiles," are willing and anxious to take contracts for grading the road, getting out the ties, and making the necessary iron. The act of July 3, 1866, enables the Union Pacific Company and Central Pacific Company, of California, to work 300 miles in advance of their continuous line, but while this privilege is probably sufficient for the California Company, on account of the nature of the country through which it will have to construct its road, it is not so for the Union Pacific, whose difficult portions stretch out for so great a distance west of their present work

SWANN AND THE PLUG UGLIES —A letter from Washington to the Stockton (Cal) Independent, contains the following account of the Governor of Maryland and of his way of carrying elections in former times

One Thomas Swann has for some years been a prominent politician of the State During the Know Nothing times he was Mayor of Baltimore in the interest of that party. I believe his conduct as Mayor fully equalled the expectations of those who elected him, and justified the approbations of those who voted against him He was as bad a Mayor as could have been desired The Plug Uglies of Baltimore—those beautiful specimens of humanity—were under the fostering care of Swann, and throve greatly and waxed fat under his management The peculiar function of these worthy men was to preserve the purity of the elections, and to effect his praiseworthy object, novel and highly ingenious means were resorted to Now, Plug Uglies are an old institution, and awls are also instruments of ancient use, but Swann made a combination of Plug Uglies and awls that was entirely new To the right knee of each Plug he attached an awl in such a manner that the awl projected outside the cloth of the trowsers, (most of the Plugs had trowsers) and became an instrument of offense and defense on the wearer's leg Provided thus with gaffs like fighting cocks, the Plugs swarmed in large numbers round the ballot boxes on election days and closely observed the conduct of all who came thither to vote If it was known that the votes belonged to the opposite party a Plug would slyly approach him from behind before he had deposited his ballot and with a dextrous movement of his right knee suddenly insert an inch or two of awl into his leg The individual would of course by this circumstance be temporarily diverted from his purpose of voting, and this diversion generally became a permanent one by the time he had received one or two more thrusts His chief desire then became to get away and remain away and he chose rather to forego his right of suffrage than to exercise it at the risk of having his legs converted into pin cushions By this device Swann used to have the elections carried about as he desired

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON D C Nov 12, 1866

It is still very dull here, though perhaps half a dozen Congressmen have arrived for the winter The November elections have come and gone, and although the Democrat is badly defeated, yes (worse than that) terribly smoked yet he does not stir from his old track He has a ready excuse for every event. New York was lost to him he says because his advice was not followed in the Copperhead nominating convention If Gen Dix had been nominated says the President "my policy would have swept the State!" Now politicians in the State of New York know better than this Dix would have polled 10 000 more votes in the country than Hoffman but Hoffman polled 15 000 (to say the least) more votes in New York and Brooklyn than Dix could have done In fact the Rum and the Liquor interest gave Hoffman from 15,000 to 25 000 votes in and around the city of New York No the Democratic leaders know what they were about Had they not tried Slocum and the loyal dodge to win the State two years ago? Was not the President with them then, when they had one of the most gallant of our Union Generals for a standard bearer? The simple truth is that Johnsonism is played out in New York as well as throughout the North and West

The President as I have said, puts on an iron face over the disastrous (to him) results of the elections, but I am induced to think that he is terribly cut up by them But he will not change his course for them, but will go out of office the most unpopular man since Buchanan John Bright told Rev Dr Thompson, of New York, who called on him some weeks ago that in his opinion Andrew Johnson was the greatest failure as a public man and statesman of our age—and he was right But he is so obstinate, or to speak plain, so great an ass that he wont see his position, and so drifts on to destruction Let him drift

The Baltimore election greatly surprised the country, but it will teach a most useful lesson—and that is the folly of attempting to shut out any large class of men from the polls for any great length of time, unless it be for crimes that are punished in the courts

The Radicals of Maryland now see their mistake They might have established impartial suffrage in the State if they had chosen to consult their prejudices, and so have retained control of it for the next twenty years As it is, the Coppers have got it, and it will be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to shake off their hold Congress is going to reconsider this whole subject The Maryland elections drives it to such a conclusion If rebels have beaten loyal men in Maryland, and in spite of laws and Constitution have got at the ballot-boxes it will be the same in other States The feeling in favor of Senator Stewart's plan of reconstruction—"universal amnesty for universal suffrage," is growing stronger each day and hour Instead of "universal suffrage," however, "impartial suffrage" will be adopted Congress will probably begin with this District The Chronicle (Forney's paper) is already out for it in very decided language Such Conservative-Republican sheets as the New York Evening Post and the Springfield, Mass, Republican advocate it heartily The tide sets that way just at present, and if the rebellious States still obstinately refuse the Constitutional Amendment, it will not surprise me if a year from this winter, the 40th Congress shall submit a new proposition, namely—a full amnesty for impartial suffrage

Some of the leading rebels assert that they will stay out for half a century, sooner than accept the terms offered They had better think twice before deciding on that point, for with a new President and continued obstinacy on their part, who can tell but Congress will remand the whole of them to a Territorial condition? Necessity may compel Congress to adopt the Sumner theory in reference to State suicide They (the Southern States) may rest assured that the loyal States are going to govern this country, and if it be necessary, every rebel State will be treated as a Territory and if they refuse to be governed in this manner, they will have to accept a military government. The country will choose its own destiny with out the interference of rebels

Gen Sherman and Senator Campbell have at last got off to Mexico—or to some point where they can have an interview with Juarez All sorts of rumors are flying respecting the object of this mission Bah! Sam, of the Republican in this city, who is pretty thick with the President, says this morning

"Within two weeks a half dozen leading papers in the country contained on the same day, a sensation announcement that Mr Stanton had asked to be relieved as Secretary of War, and requested to be sent as Minister to Spain, in place of John P Hale, and that Lieut. Gen. Sherman was to be jumped over the head of his superior officer, Gen Grant, and put into the War Office. We authoritatively denied the statement The Times correspondent flew into a passion, fathered the sensation dispatch for all the papers, pitched into the Republican, as an unreliable journal, having no authority to deny the statement, &c, &c Time has verified the Republican, and taught the correspondent a valuable lesson Mr Hale remains in Spain, Mr Stanton in the War Office, and Lieut Gen. Sherman is on his way to Mexico

Finding himself mistaken, and discovering accidentally where Gen Sherman was destined, and being unable to keep a "Government secret," the Times precipitates upon the market another sensation Mexican bond-speculating dispatch, not "exclusively in the Times" but he sends it to a Philadelphia, Boston, and Cincinnati paper, as well as to the Times

While a portion of the dispatch was true much of it was "mere fancy work" That portion of it announcing that Gen Sherman was going to Mexico with Mr Campbell was true, but the portion which declared that the Liberal Government of Mexico had asked for a protectorate, and that our Government had agreed to grant the request, and that we were to receive in return large portions of Northern Mexico, &c, &c, &c, was, as we were authorized to declare, and did declare, 'mere fancy work"

I suppose there is a great deal of truth in the above, and that Hanscom got it from Andy Johnson But the exact words respecting the Times' correspondent's mission as well have been left out, for he is one of the clever men of the Capital The fact is, the President of these United States is not very choice in his company, and is quite as likely to impart important State matters to a newspaper correspondent as to anybody else—especially of the correspondent is a ready

I have my own theory of this new Mexican mission, and it is this Sherman and Campbell have no authority to conclude anything, but will report to the Administration upon their return They desire to ascertain the views of Juarez by a personal interview with him No doubt the President and Mr Seward desire to recognize Juarez in preference to Ortega, but they are fully aware that they can do nothing without the consent of two-thirds of the Senate, so they are tolerably cautious That a new treaty is in contemplation I have no doubt, and the Mexican bondholders are trying to push it with all their might, and stand ready to buy half the Senate if it is necessary to accomplish their plans

The "rebellious States" are more disappointed over the elections at the North and West (apparently) than the President is They were sure that with all the patronage of the President he could carry his views at the ballot-box, but they were terribly mistaken, it seems Orr, Humphreys, and the rest of the Southern Governors refuse to accept the Constitutional Amendment. But it should be remembered that they do it under the instigation of the President Thus we have the singular spectacle of a "Union" President endeavoring to prevent a speedy reconstruction lest rebels should pay too dear for peace, and loyal men should obtain too ample security! If this is not political wickedness, what is?

I am sorry to have to write that the President is still surrounded by bad men, and as long as this is the case there is no hope of his reform But even if good men were around him I am not sure that it would save him from his evil course Mr Seward recently said to a Radical friend, "You ask me to try and serve you with the President, but I tell you that Mr Johnson is a very obstinate man, and when he sets his head upon a thing I cannot stop him He will have his way at such times" So spoke Mr Seward a few days ago, and Mr Seward says that the President is a most patriotic man What then would be the view of a Radical? He would pronounce the President to be obstinate ugly and malicious in his tendency to do mischief and the Radical critic would come a great deal nearer the truth than your optimist of the Seward stamp

Poor Seward! Less than a year ago he told a Union Member of Congress from New York that not more than six or three of the Radical members of the present House would be re elected! Yet nearly all have been, and the State will be represented in the next House much stronger as far as radicalism is concerned than now So, this poor old man predicted 40 000 majority for Hoffman and the latest figures give Fenton 1c 000 He may as well stop predicting for the future Such a man must be shallow in his intellect as well as in his moral convictions

Indian Matters in Eastern Oregon

The following items are from the Willamette Farmer of Friday last

In our last issue we noticed the running off of Messrs McClosky and Cresap's pack train from near Camp Watson and the pursuit of the Indians by a detachment of Col Baker's command As we then predicted, the savages have been overhauled and a glorious victory achieved The detachment of troops consisted of twenty men under Sergeant Thomas Conner The trail was taken after taking the pack train started in a south westerly direction and no doubt some feared themselves perfectly safe Sergeant Conner with his detachment kept up the pursuit and by the help of the little snow that had fallen in cross hills tracked the savages When about seventy miles from the post he came upon the Indians about daylight during a violent snow storm and while the savages were packing their animals for their day's journey After making the necessary disposition of the men a charge was made on the Indian camp The Indians stood their ground but during the snow storm their rifles became damp and every gun snapped The soldiers seeing the state of affairs drew their sabres and cut the savages down killing fourteen men and capturing five women All the stolen mules except two—which the Indians had killed—together with ten horses were captured and an amount of dried meat and other supplies destroyed This is one of the most complete victories ever had over the Snakes and one from which they will not soon recover When the past month Col Baker's command has killed about fifty Indians and are prepared to take some more jobs of the same sort All honor to the brave men who thus rid our country of these savages

We understand the order directing Mr Darragh and his detachment of Indians to take the field has been countermanded by Gen Hallock The cause of this action on the part of the Division Commander we have not heard but it is much to be regretted It will compell the return of Dr McKay and his detachment who, it will be remembered, left here about two weeks since Mr McKay took with him only thirty days' rations at the end of which time he was to have met Mr Darragh on the Chowe, and from that point the campaign was to have commenced As it is now very late in the season the chances are that the expedition will prove a failure, owing to the action of Gen, Hallock

CONSUL GENERAL—It may be of interest to some to know that Prussia contemplates sending a Consul General to New York but of far greater importance to the citizens of Oregon is the fact that KOHN & FISHEL continue to sell fine custom made clothing at prices that defy competition a visit to their establishment No 111 Front street will satisfy all of the truth of our assertion

THE ASSAULT CASE AGAIN.—Another Farce.—The trial of Lizzie Lightfoot and three of her female pals, on a charge of assault and battery upon Barbara Smith, took place on Saturday before Justice Gradon. The motion of defendants' counsel for the action on the ground of a former trial and to dismiss the case, was overruled. The defendants then pleaded for a jury trial. After the hearing of evidence, which was about the same as upon the trial before the Justice, three of the jury stood for conviction and three for acquittal, a final compromise was effected and all agreed upon a verdict of "not guilty." At 2 o'clock P. M., upon a verdict of "not guilty," the case was dismissed, and substantially the same action, in various forms and phases, have been before the public till they have become stale and the better class of our citizens have become very naturally, disgusted. When tried before the Police Court, and then again before Justice Gradon, there was no doubt in the minds of anybody but that a gross violation of a city ordinance had been perpetrated; that the parties had a fight and loud obscene language was proved, that the prosecuting witness was as much to blame as the defendants, if such were the fact, as the defendants, did not deny; that the jury in saying in effect, as they did say by their verdict of "not guilty," that there was no brawl, no fight and no law or ordinance violated. The two juries in each trial seemed to go upon the assumption that the officers of the City were not to blame, because somebody else was guilty of the fight who could not be reached a verdict of guilty, because they could not punish all, they would not punish any. The precautions and pains taken with the results, are a complete farce, and have done more to render crime respected and the law powerless, than can be exhibited in a half-dozen cases of rigorous administration of justice and law. If these cases are to be followed by verdicts, we might as well have no law, no courts and no police. Our opinion is that the Recorder, in the first cases, and the Justice in the second, would have punished the parties, had they, instead of a jury, tried them. The refinement of points of law raised all leaned toward the sacredness of the dignity of the law; but the verdicts of the juries were such as to create doubts whether, after all, the law is not a sort of costly farce. We believe in the public wisdom, that,

"It must not make a scare-crow of the law,
Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
And let it keep one shape, till custom make it
Their perch and not their terror.

A CITY OF REFUGE.—When the last steamers went down, they took a considerable number of men who left simply because they could not get employment. If there are a great many yet remaining who have got some employment, bad. It is no uncommon thing to hear of families to support who are running up bills at the shops for what they eat, or single men who are living upon the viands and the good nature of their landlords. Out of employment! that's what's the matter. The state of things may go on tolerably well for a while, but employment finally get tired of scaring and landlords' good nature is not proof against the wear and tear of "tick." There is a day when all this must end, and then come distress and the blues and a "fly" for the last people of easy circumstances never dreamed of. We tried it and know what it is to be out of employment—out of cash, out at the elbows, scraping the bottom of the meal-tub, credit getting low at the bay-holes on the wharf. Yet it is the common event in Portland when everybody is employed, and the victims of intemperance are supplied above want. Will philanthropists of Portland and elsewhere please take notice, and when they can, help the man who is out of employment?

FIRE AT A WAREHOUSE.—Just before daylight on Saturday morning a portion of the flooring of Couch & Flanders' warehouse gave way and precipitated about forty sacks and fifty tons of flour and wheat upon the lower floor. About twenty-five or thirty feet square of the floor was crushed through, but the broken timbers fell in such a way that the bottom of the bins remaining, only a few sacks of wheat and flour fell through the cracks in the broken floor, the rest being supported by timbers left so that the fallen corner may be cleared to its original dimensions. The cause of the accident was the fact that the feet of some of the supporting timbers had been placed upon the sills or stringers of the floor between the piles and on the very edge of the sills, instead of resting them over until they split off, and thus tripping the pulls from their fastenings. The posts not thus tripped from the sills, like straws, and beams of twelve by fourteen were broken into splinters. Nobody was hurt, beyond getting a fright, so that the only damage sustained is a pecuniary nature. The stock of the building, by the people in all the wooden buildings on the wharf, some of the tenants being absent on a holiday excursion. The work of getting out the flour and wheat was at once begun and it is probable that the floor will be repaired during the week, but the ware cannot be used for storing any such weight again until piles can be got in, at low water. Probable loss, about $2,000.

THE MUSICAL ADVANTAGES.—We observe by circular that the popular music teacher, Professor H. G. Grob, will open on and after Jan. 23, 1867, to form classes for instrumental music, at his rooms, corner 4th and Oak streets. The public in general will be pleased to learn that this gentleman has been prevailed upon to open a class for instructing not only the juvenile students, who may have comparatively limited means at command, but parties of amateur musicians who are desirous of forming glee clubs, with or without instruments. Prof. Grob has been but a short time in our city, but he has already established an enviable reputation as a musician of no common ability.

A female of frail reputation who was arrested up in the recent Second street skirmishes, having been the subject of considerable, having been the subject of [illegible] by one of the attorneys in Justice [illegible] on Saturday, "went for him" while the [illegible] was still in [illegible], but was summarily sent down [illegible] by a V [illegible] before the bad time to develop her [illegible]. She waited at the foot of the stairs for some [illegible] the attorney, evidently under the impression that her style of people have the upper hand of the law now, and that other people should not [illegible] much to say.

[illegible], was picked up by officer Ball at the corner of Front and Washington, at a late hour Saturday night, and lodged in the city jail to sleep off the effects of an overdose of nitro-glycerine. When he awoke yesterday morning he met with the greatest surprise of his life, as nothing whatever of how he came there, or the events of the previous windows of his room would have occurred to him that he had actually spent a night in jail. He deposited the necessary bail for his release, and went his way.

A gentleman who arrived from [illegible] a day or two since, says that very few [illegible] to spend the winter west of the mountains already come down. This would seem to indicate very few passengers are now arriving [illegible] Kan. Travel by the Willamette [illegible] so great as at this time last year. Since [illegible] of the three steamers of last week, the [illegible] considerably deserted and the proprietors are [illegible] of excessively dull times.

MARKET PRICES.—McCraken, Merrill & Co.'s Market Report for Wednesday, 5th, contains the following: "We have received several wholesale grocers to state that a general boost is being perpetrated in the packing [illegible] of Eastern straw wrapping paper. Much [illegible] is effected counting out 241 eighteen [illegible] while California counts out twenty [illegible] to each ought to contain twenty-four [illegible] We have heard complaints about the same matter [illegible]

NEWSPAPERS.—We learn from the Enterprise that J. W. Lewis of Oregon City intends soon [illegible] the manufacture on an extensive scale, of [illegible] and mowing machines. We know [illegible] Oregon needs more than a few good [illegible] of the kind implements, and we are pleased [illegible] a workman as Mr. Lewis should turn [illegible] in that direction.

[illegible] For the last two or three days, an [illegible] about the corner of Washington and Front [illegible] which, for laudible emphasis, beats the "balm of [illegible] out of all calculation. It is not [illegible] the sewer or the drain, and the Street Commissioner [illegible] by meddling with it.

[illegible] The Coach brings up the news that the [illegible] went to sea the day after leaving here, and [illegible] until Friday morning. The Pacific was [illegible] river on Saturday.

[illegible]—The sitting of the Circuit Court will [illegible] to-day. There are a large number of cases [illegible] docket enough, probably, to engage the attention [illegible] for two or three weeks.

STATE ITEMS.

Total amount of taxes collected in Clackamas county from all sources (U. S. taxes not included) during the year ending in July, 1866, was $26,043 86.

The Congregational Sabbath School at the Dalles gave a splendid entertainment at Moody's Hall last Tuesday evening. It was a grand success. The funds are to be used in purchasing a new Library for the school.

Mr. Wortley, late of the Willamette Woolen Factory at Salem, has taken charge of the Sacket Mill at Oregon City, and gone to the woolen in take charge of the Factory there.

The assessor's return for Clackamas county shows a total valuation of real and personal property amounting to $1,847,348. There are 1,695 persons in the county who pay poll tax. Last year it had 1,534 voters. We quote from the Enterprise.

The Natural Equality of Man.

Old John Milton was a Radical. In 1649 he wrote his "Tenure of Kings and Magistrates," a treatise whose seminal idea was the same as that which more than a century later, appeared in our Declaration of Independence. The object of the treatise was to prove that Kings and Magistrates are but the executors of the will of the people, and are justly responsible to them for the manner in which they execute their trust. The following is one of his noblest passages:

"No man, who knows aught, can be so stupid as to deny that all men naturally were born free, being the image and resemblance of God himself, and were, by privilege above all the creatures, born to command, and not to obey; and that they lived so, till from the root of Adam's transgression falling among themselves to do wrong and violence, and foreseeing that such courses must needs tend to the destruction of them all, they agreed by common league to bind each other from mutual injury, and jointly to defend themselves against any that gave disturbance or opposition to such agreement. Hence came cities, towns and commonwealths. And because no faith in all was found sufficiently binding, they saw it needful to ordain some authority that might restrain by force and punishment what was violated against peace and common right.

"This authority and power of self-defence and preservation being originally and naturally in every one of them, and unitedly in them all; for ease, for order, and lest each man should be his own partial judge, they communicated and derived either to one, whom for the eminence of his wisdom and integrity they chose above the rest, or to more than one, whom they thought of equal deserving: the first was called a king; the other, magistrates; not to be their lords and masters (though afterwards those names of some places were given voluntarily to such as had been authors of inestimable good to the people), but to be their deputies and commissioners, to execute, by virtue of their intrusted power, that justice, which else every man by the bond of nature and of covenant must have executed for himself, and for one another. And to him that shall consider well why among free persons one man by civil right should bear authority and jurisdiction over another, no other end or reason can be imaginable."

A SAGACIOUS YORKSHIREMAN.—An English paper relates that a Yorkshireman who had attended a meeting of the London Anthropological Society, was asked by a friend what the learned gentleman had been saying. "Well, I don't exactly know," he replied, "there are many things I could not understand; but there was one thing I thowt I made out—they believe that we come from monkeys, and I thout as how they were fast getting back again to where they came from."

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.
Wonderful Cure of the Rev. D. L. Brayton, Missionary in India, who was stung by a Scorpion.
Extract from his letter, published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine:
"For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a scorpion. I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual, at early dawn, and having occasion to use an old box, on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion, which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand. The instantaneous and severe pain which darted through the system is quite incredible; what an awful virulent poison their sting must contain! I FLEW TO MY BOTTLE OF DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, and found it to be true to its name; after a few moments' relief, I satiated a small piece of sponge, bound it on my hand, and went about by exercises, feeling no more particular inconvenience."

STOP THAT COUGHING
COME OF YOU CAN'T, AND WE PITY you. You have tried every remedy but the ONE destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

Pulmonary Syrup
is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefitted by the surprising curative powers of

Pulmonary Syrup
and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the greatest Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure YOU if you try it.

Pulmonary Syrup
This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste; soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects; entirely free from all poisonous or deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.
Certificates from many prominent citizens of San Francisco accompany every bottle of

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 635 AND 637 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

"INS

My Financial Operation

If it is possible for an inhabitant of the same metropolis with Rothschild and Baring, to know as little of commercial affairs as an agriculturist in the back country does of mining, then am I that man If not possible then am I the nearest approximation to such phenomenon What caviare is to the multitude, so is the city article of my matutinal Times to me It is less than nothing to me to read that railways are steady or that mines are firm both statements are contrary to my own experience as a traveler and an observer but I am aware that the expressions are metaphorical and I do not pry into their meaning If on the other hand the market is pronounced to be flat which corroborates my knowledge of markets so far as it goes I am not thereby puffed up to imagine that I understand the statement When I possess myself of the fact that "shoulders and offal (in the trade report) are in larger supply but not so much wanted, it excites no astonishment with me, it is true that I hate shoulders, and as for offal I have never been reduced to shipwreck or other calamity to be in a position to give an opinion, but then I am aware that there are other people in the world especially in the world of commerce, about whose tastes I know nothing, I simply say "very good," with the same training acquiescence with which I learn that gutta percha being 'depressed' or pig iron "lively"

People with whom I mix do not talk of such things and if they did, would only display their ignorance Not one of my ordinary associates—no, not one—although many of them are very funded, can tell me what Consols mean by being "at 86⅞ for delivery, and 86⅜ ex div for the account," Or would have thought "ex Rivet" was Latin, but that it is not put in italics and as for the fractions—really framing such an every fine seems to smack not a little of pedantry Nevertheless, I do not affect that North American Indian indifference to all things out of my special sphere that is professed by some of my acquaintance, I have preserved, thank goodness, my natural curiosity, and when the newspaper informed me, in another place beside its ordinary commercial column, upon a certain Friday in May, that there was a panic in the city, I at once determined to go and see it I could not prevail upon any of my West End friends to accompany me, one had to meet a pair of sister equestrians in Rotten row, to neither of whom, being co-heresses, he could make up his mind to propose, but was always wishing himself a Mormon, another was going to look at a chestnut at Tattersall's, a third would not give up his daily rubber at the Portland to see St Paul's fall in from vaults to cupola If the panic was anything worth seeing, they said, it might depend upon it that it would come to St James' Hall, or to the Hanover Square rooms, in time.

This was annoying because it necessitated the expense of conveyance, instead, as usual, of my using a friend's carriage I am not rich myself, but I am thankful to say that I am the only person in that position among my associates; I could have had a hind seat on a dray to Richmond or have been accommodated (if I didn't mind sitting with my back to the horses) with a place in the barouche to Greenwich that very day, but since nobody could be prevailed upon to turn his horses' heads, for my sake, toward the bank, I took a return ticket to Farringdon street by the Metropolitan railway A very curious affair is that underground line, and well worthy of a visit from persons of condition. It seems, however, to be exclusively used by the commercial classes, and by various old ladies, who keep their eyes shut long after they emerge from the tunnels, and are entirely dependent upon their fellow travelers for discriminating the ordinary stoppages of the train from alarming accidents However, they and I had one little peculiarity in common—we had neither of us any distinct idea of where we were going to, or for what purpose.

"Mr Brown," explained one, moved to do so by that incomprehensible instinct which goads unprotected females of a certain age to make confidants of the general public—"Mr Brown is to meet me at Margate"—no, Moorgate street station. If anything was to prevent him gracious knows what I should do We are going to the Royal Exchange, I believe, to draw my dividends, of which I have given them warning He tells me there is not a moment to be lost. What terrible times we live in, gentlemen! Goodness, mercy on me, if here isn't Cobbler tensel!" One ancient dame was good enough to attempt to explain to us in detail how her grandfather made his money in Bubbles "Bubbles," she said, "which were of a very peculiar sort, and only to be procured in the South Seas." This lady put me in an embarrassing position by asking my opinion, as a man of business, of the pecuniary condition of her joint stock bank, of which, however, she had fortunately forgotten the name. "Down at Bullock-Smithy," said she, "every body is ready to swear by it. Lawyer Sharp shins always keeps an account there, and he's no fool, so you may know what is thought of it" "Perhaps," observed a sarcastic old gentleman upon my right, taking the handle of his umbrella out of his mouth, for the first time, in order to give point to the observation—"perhaps he over draws his account, ma'am"

"I dare say he does, sir," returned the lady earnestly, "for he is a very rich man; and yet I can't help whispering, for nothing seems safe in these times, that I was not a director"

At these words, all the old gentlemen in the carriage took the handles of their umbrellas out of their mouths with one consent.

"A director, ma'am—you surely are not on the direction," observed two or three

"Oh yes, gentlemen, there is no mistake about that," replied the lady with dignity. "I don't know what you mean by 'on the direction,' because, as I say, I've forgotten the address, but Mr. Robinson, my brother in-law's clerk, and a very respectable young man, who is to meet me at Alderman's Gate, he will tell you all about it Why, I have a matter of eight hundred pounds—there's the exact sum written in my pocket-book, if you'd like to read it, for my eyes aren't equal to it by this light—talk of gas, give me candles say I any day of the week, or leastwise after dark. Well, if I've got neat upon a thousand pounds in the bank, I suppose you'll not deny that I'm a director."

"She's a deponter," observed the same old gentleman testily, "of course, she's a deponter"

"What's he saying" observed the female capitalist, addressing herself to me. "If he is saying anything disrespectful, I shall put the matter into the hands of my brother-in law"

"I don't think he meant anything objectionable, ma'am," returned I soothingly.

"Certainly not, ma'am, added he involuntary detractor with a chuckle, "though if I had called you a shareholder you might have had some reason for objection to it."

"If you had ventured to use any impertinence, sir, I should have complained to Mr. Robinson's clerk," replied the lady, and so to my great relief, the matter dropped.

It was certainly strange enough to unfashioned ears to listen to the talk among men during the intervals of suction What was "going" and what was "likely to go," what had "stopped" and what had "gone," which seemed to be convertible terms; and, in particular, with reference to these last misfortunes, how "every one with half an eye had been aware of the rottenness of the concern for these last six months" It was very like the conversation of good male society during the Derby week, only, instead of horses breaking down or getting "scratched," it was concerning joint stock banks and discount-houses I ventured to inquire of one of these worthies where was the best place, in his opinion, from which to see the panic

"You will see it every where," said he, not with out some symptoms of irritation, "but if you are exceedingly anxious, you had better hire a window in Lombard street."

I thanked him very much, but having once put that identical device into effect (with my Lord Tom Noddy and others) upon the occasion of a certain public exhibition in the Old Bailey, and found it to be very expensive, I determined to take my chance upon the pavement, perhaps there would be cane-bottomed chairs on hire or other temporary elevations to stand upon, from which the sight could be seen at a more reasonable figure I regret to say, however, that neither by the authorities nor private enterprise were any steps whatever taken to provide for the general advantage in this respect. The city is certainly centuries behind the West End in matters of convenience It is not generally known that the Lord Mayor's Feast is, with the exception of turtle soup, a cold collation, yet such is the humiliating fact Nay, if you feel the want of luncheon (as I did) while in the barbarous district, I'm sure I don't know where a gentleman is to find it However, I am anticipating my difficulties The first time I caught sight of the panic was in a place called Cheapside, opposite a clockmaker's of the name of Bennett. It is true that the streets had been all inconveniently full, and the crossing of them attended with extreme peril, but that I have read is always the case A French writer of the day has even founded a theory to account for the indomitable character of the British race—"nation of shop keepers" although they be—upon the dangers to which they are daily exposed from wheel and hoof. He calculates also the pressure of the crowd in the neighborhood of Threadneedle street on dividend days, as so many pounds to the square inch, and thereby explains our marvelous powers of endurance. It is a great mistake, he goes on to say, to suppose that city people are of sedentary habits the stock brokers keep their hats on even in their offices so that they may be ready to rush out and purchase stock at discount, or sell it at a premium, while the rest of the commercial public amuse themselves at equal but frequent intervals in running on the banks That was what they were doing on that Friday when I went into the city At first, as I have said I thought that Mr Bennett's was a bank, but the crowd had gathered from that of his establishment for no other purpose than to see the figures over the great clock—"symbolizing," as I was informed the small hours—come forth and strike the quarters No sooner had these performed the two o'clock than an echo with the same result, And lunch-o'-time But I am a person (when once roused) of an inflexible resolution and I did not yet seen nothing of the panic I had heard however, enough and to spare Every other person who met or passed me was talking of that and nothing, else The only countenances which were not serious were those of the cross sweepers who keep all the money they pass across where the monkeys hoard their gingerbread—in their mouths It was a day of disgrace to Dives and Lazarus exempt from fear was enjoying his rare adventure

"Got a fourpenny left sir? Got a copper, please sir? Nothin but Overland and Gurney's paper old! Dear me! It was the world turned upside down with a vengeance Opposite the great house, with its closed doors—so frequent on their hinges a few years ago—stood an enormous gathering, of people of all ranks, looking at it with a strange sort of awe, as though it were the palace of their king, and he was lying dead there, and to many of them so it doubtless was

But yesterday the word of itself (or at least his body) might have stood against the world, now lay he there, and none so poor that he would back his bill! Two millions! Five hundred hundred thousand pounds," whispered one to his friend, in a hushed voice, as though he were speaking of the virtues of some great man departed "A thousand fortunes gone at a single blow"

Ay, and the poor people it has ruined," returned the other "that is still worse to think about! The widows and the unconscious orphans, on some of whom, perhaps it were better that the house itself had fallen, like the walls of Jericho, and spared them the ills to come"

No wonder the crowd was sad and silent It was looking upon the ruins of a hundred happy households, and on what would for the future be but a splendid monument to commemorate the "better days" that they had known The very sight of it seemed to decide some who were debating about the propriety of letting their money be where it was, for they walked hastily away to join the crowd that was besieging the neighboring bank Lombard street itself was well nigh impassible, not indeed, from the pressure, so much as from the throng who, like myself, had come to look at it, and over and anon, as some quiet broughams, with steady country coachman, drove up to the bank door, with a froghtened looking for its occupant, nervously clutching her check book, the crowd give a great cheer to reassure her, and another when she came out with her money with a beaming face Once, too, a tremendous shout rang forth as a cab, guarded by policemen, drove slowly up, and certain heavy packages were carried into the threatened house, for we all know that it was gold. That was what all such houses prayed for on that day How the poor old lady in Threadneedle street was importuned and worried for those four and twenty twenty hours by her prodigal children! How they begged of her for her autograph and miniature, and the watermark that never fails to cool the fever of impatient demand! How they went down on their knees and offered promises to pay—securities to which nobody would have had a word of objection two days ago—but at which she now shook her head, and wiping her spectacles, declined to have anything to do with, dr, if consenting, tendered them but nine-tenths of what they asked, keeping the rest for usury! and even for that they were grateful, waiting in her parlor with beating heart—for even now the help might come too late—while she descended into her ample vaults and brought up, like Aladdin of old, her bags of treasure, and bade them make the most of it, for that she had not much more left than what she wanted for her own use. "A pretty thing," said the old lady, "if people should come to my door, and make a racket as they do at yours, asking for their own, and should find that it was not here For my promises are not like pie-crust, I would have you know"

There is nothing like the least like pie-crust to be seen in Lombard street, nor anything eatable whatever. Even the London Tavern, which is said to be open to rich and poor alike, might just as well have been closed, for I found nothing in it but auctions Everything was "going, going," in the city on that fatal day. There were no more oystershops, it is true, but who eats oysters in the month of May? And there were a good many public houses with swinging doors, upon which was written Luncheon bar, but I cannot feed standing like a stalled ox Then I suddenly remembered that I had once met a merchant prince, who had impressed me favorably with his class by hinting that if ever I came by his little place in the city, I would look in and lunch If it had not been for the panic I should certainly never have reaped any benefit from the invitation, but he had given it in all good faith The wing of a chicken and a tumbler of iced hock and Seltzer water was all that I meant to trouble him for, and then I would light my cigar, and go home in a hansom I had no difficulty in finding the establishment over which Fortunatus Fipps presided—he was called Fortunatus because, although he had been connected with trade on a large scale for more than a quarter of a century, he had only been twice in the Gazette—but it was not so easy to find the gentleman himself On my first arrival, there was quite a commotion among his clerks, who were all looking very quiet and idle, and one of them was running off with my card into the private sanctum of his proprietor, but upon my letting them know, in answer to inquiries, that I was not the accommodating gentleman momentarily expected from the Bank of England, he said he didn't think Mr Fipps could see me that day, unless I came by special appointment.

"That is just my case," said I decisively, "my compliments to Fortu—Mr Fipps, I mean—and I am come to lunch" The card was accordingly taken in, and after a little delay I was admitted into the sanctuary

Fipps was not looking by any means so brilliant as when I had seen him last, which was in the smoking room of a great ex minister, his hair was dishevelled, as though recently combed with the fingers, his face was very pale, and he wore an anxious and distracted air, as though he was listening for something—such as the fall in the bank rate of discount, but I was so full of my luncheon, or rather of the want of it, that I failed to notice these little peculiarities, although I remembered them afterward

"Well, Mr Fipps," said I with gaiety, "you see I am come for my bond"

"I am not aware, sir, that we have anything of yours," replied Fortunatus tartly, who was evidently in ignorance as to my identity

"My very dear sir," said I in soothing tones, "I do not refer to any business transaction When I say my bond, I mean my pound of flesh (if cold chicken can be so denominated)—the lunch you promised me, when I had the pleasure of meeting you at Lord Tadpole's"

"Yes, yes," returned Fortunatus, forcing a smile, "I remember now quite well, a charming dinner, no such thing as tightness anywhere, no symptom of a crisis But I beg your pardon Lunch, lunch! What will you have for lunch? [He was talking like a man in a dream] We have got some first rate bills on Liverpool, names you can have no possible objection to"

"Ahem," said I, purposely sneezing with great violence for I did not want to hear about Fipp's financial position "If you'd only give me a glass of sherry but don't let me hurry you, pray"

"Sherry?" echoed he gravely, "and don't let me hurry you, pray" Spanish Passives No East del Rey—the sacrifice is enormous"

"Then let me have some cheaper wine," replied I, cheerfully

"It's all locked up," returned he in mysterious tones "Four hundred and eighty five thousand"

"Dozen?" cried I making a rapid estimate of the possible extent of cellarage under the establishment "I don't believe it."

"Hush" said he, mysteriously "Nobody does; but for heaven's sake don't talk so loud"

"Chicken" speculated I, with resolution

"No, sir," returned Fipps, simply, "I have no apprehensions of the result, I do assure you—that is, of the eventual result In the iron cheat'

'Ay, the refrigerator!" exclaimed I, "why the deuce did you not mention that at first?" and I clapped my hands together for very joy The unaccustomed noise seemed to awake Fortunatus from his lethergy

"I beg your pardon," said he frankly, and passing his hand across his forehead "but I have been announced in calculations all the morning, and I thought I was talking to—to a gentleman connected with another banking establishment with which we are—or at least hope to be—connected Lunch! certainly the hospitalities of the city must be dispensed with—I mean must be dispensed You have no share in any joint stock bank I presume"

Not that I know of, replied I oh no I'm sure I'm not, that is so sure as a man can be who has got no bond for business No, I've nothing but a running account with the northwest branch of the Imperial Adamantine"

'What!' exclaimed Fortunatus, in alarm "Have you money in that bank?"

"Yes," said I, I think I've got one hundred and twenty pounds in it, that's all'

'My dear sir" returned Mr Fipps, with solemnity, and laying his hand upon my arm, 'that is one of the banks that people are talking about, it is true," added he hastily "that all of us—even the most solvent firms—are subject upon occasions of this kind to groundless suspicion but the Imperial Adamant ne—I suppose you have your check book with you"

'Fortunatus goodness! replied I I left it just as soon think of coming out with my body as it is in my desk, of course.

Then take my advice, and go home at once and draw the money Not a moment is to be lost your bank will be closed at four (what o'clock is it now) The nearest Metropolitan station is the fourth turning on the left I am so glad I have had this opportunity of—of—giving you the timely warning—indeed if you are so fortunate as to be in time This is your umbrella I think"

I didn't know whether it was or not I left I snatched up the one that happened to be the nearest and ran out of the house with a speed that astonished myself almost as much as it caused to surprise other people He, running on the bank!" cried one of those unfeeling, cruel sweepers who in my judgment since they have no property qualification should not be permitted to express their opinions, even though they chance to be correct

In the very nick of time I caught the train though not of course in motion—and arrived at my own lodgings at 3 10 or, in other words with fifty minutes to spare, But it was not that which caused me to hesitate in my proposed immediate operation I had met an old gentleman in the train, to whom I had confided the cause of my excitement, and not only had he greatly reassured me in the nature of the Imperial Adamantine but he had informed me that it was thoughtless people like myself who had caused the panic To think that I, who had gone into the city merely to look at it, should be accused of such a terrible thing? At the same time if everybody drew their money out, as I was about to be proved to me that every bank in the country must needs collapse Altogether I was so ashamed of my intention—it seemed such an ungentlemanly sort of a thing to do—that I determined to send my landlady to transact the matter instead of myself Moreover, since even then I had my scruples I only drew the check for a hundred and fifteen guineas, leaving the Imperial Adamantine Banking Company exactly four pounds five to break upon if they were resolutely determined to do do Never, surely, were generosity and security more happily combined than by this ingenious device But the Imperial Adamantine did not break after all, nor, according to the commercial intelligence (which, now that I know what a panic is I peruse with avidity) has it been in the least danger of breaking I read, however, that there was a severe run on that Friday afternoon upon the great houses of Fipps & Company, and I have my suspicions that, Fortunatus' mind being a little preoccupied, he may have inoculated me with his own panic, simply and solely for the purpose of getting me out of the way to call at his office and be at once restored Surgical operation on SKIN DISEASES performed on the EYES for film, cataract, strabismus or cross eyes

Below are some of the many testimonials
This is to certify that I, John B Jodwan was blind for over nine years and I tried all means for a cure and had many doctors, and all of no effect, and I spent all the money I had Finally I had to come to the county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown, and stated my case to him and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes, and now I am well and can mend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured JOHN B JODWAN

SATURDAY, Feb 10 1866
This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief, when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown, who examined her eyes, and on began to give her treatment and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been thirteen years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound

THOMAS LIVINGSTON,
Deer Creek Precinct, Douglas county
Sworn to this 21, 1866

This is to certify that I was blind for four months and almost blind for one year and a half Several eye doctors but received no benefit I was almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown now of Salem I was induced to try him, he performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to Dr G W Brown, who rescued me from a fate otherwise that death and also for the benefit of those who are labouring under similar diseases that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES, UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES APPROVED JULY 28, 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, September 16, 1866

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months from the 1st day of October 1866, and before any payments are made shall be classified by regiments, battalions, or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid.

No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28, 1866, more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the amount therein claimed

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department.

4 As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment or other independent organization shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office and also in the office of the Second Auditor, of all claims presented under the law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments, etc If the heirs have allowed the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6 In the applications for bounty, as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant, and also that he never served otherwise than as hereinbefore stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes as State Militia, Home Guards, etc., will not be included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act

8 Soldiers enlisted for three years or during the war, who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war, shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this Act

9 The proper officers of heirs, claimants for bounty under the Act must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non-residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit.

The proven use of the Act excludes from its benefits the following classes

1 Those who after serving the full period of their enlistment were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service, but not occasioned by wounds received in the line of duty, who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6 The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who under previous laws have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers when such soldiers have bartered sold, assigned loaned transferred, exchanged or given away the final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress

8 The Act of the 28th of July, 1866 does no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which those heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty and debars certain classes brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act
